

It is the custom to display the flag only from sunrise to sunset outside. However, the flag may be displayed 24 hours a day if properly illuminated during the hours of darkness.

When the flag is flown at half-staff, it should first be elevated to peak position, held there momentarily, and lowered. At the day's end, the flag should again be elevated to peak position before lowering.

When the flag is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, it should be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning.

HOW TO DISPLAY OUR FLAG

The American flag symbolizes liberty, freedom, and pride. It has accompanied Americans during our Nation's greatest achievements. It flies at both geographic poles, on the moon, and atop Mount Everest.

The flag is how America signs her name.

For over 60 years, United Spinal Association's VetsFirst program has been fighting for the rights of America's disabled veterans

Our network of National Service Officers provides assistance and representation in claims for benefits and services before the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, other Federal and state agencies and legal representation before the U. S. Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims.

Your donation to VetsFirst will help assist our veterans and returning warriors in obtaining the services and benefits that they need and have earned. These include: timely health care, disability compensation, counseling and specialized treatment, vocational and educational benefits, readjustment services, representation, and many other much needed benefits and services.

You can make your online donation at www.vetsfirst.org/donation.

The American flag, when carried in procession with another flag, should be on the marching right—its own right.

Another flag or pennant may be flown above the American flag only during church services conducted at sea by U.S. Naval Chaplains for Navy Personnel.

When displayed with another flag in the crossed-staff format, the American flag should be on its own right—and in front of the other flags staff.

The American flag should be centered and at the highest point when displayed on its staff with other flags.

If other flags are flown on the same staff with the American flag, the American flag should be placed at the peak of the staff.

When the flag is suspended from a staff projecting horizontally from a building, the union should be at the peak of the staff—except when the flag is at half-staff.

When displayed over a street, the flag should be suspended vertically. The union will be to the north in an east-west street, and to the east in a north-south street.

When the flag is displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be at the top and to your left. When in a window, the flag should be displayed in the same manner as seen from the street.

When covering a casket, the flag should be positioned so the union is at the head and over the left shoulder. It should not be lowered into a grave or allowed to touch the ground.

During the raising or lowering of the flag, or during its passage in a parade, all present should face the flag, and stand at attention with hand over their hearts. Men should remove their caps.

When the National Anthem is played, all present should face the flag with the right hand over the heart. Men should remove their hats. Persons in uniform should remain silent, face the flag, and salute.

The American flag should always have the position of honor on speakers' platforms, standing to the right of the speaker. All other flags should be on the speakers' left.

Bunting for ceremonial or decorative use should be arranged with the blue on the top, white in the middle, and red on the bottom.

During the unveiling of monuments or statues, the flag should never be used as a covering.

The American flag features 13 horizontal stripes—seven of them are red and six are white. In the upper quarter of the flag next to the staff are white, five-pointed stars that designate each state.
